

MARIA CORTES

Student, University of California Merced

Maria Cortes is an upcoming fourth-year student studying Environmental Systems Science at the University of California, Merced. She is currently an intern for the Office of Sustainability and CITRIS and the Banatao Institute where she works with faculty members/staff and researchers to inform about sustainable practices. Maria comes from the Central Valley of California and plans on becoming an environmental scientist, climate scientist, or air quality researcher.

